PARTNERSHIP BRIEF

Bring the Cycle Breaker Quest to your sites

A proposed pilot for youth organizations with multiple program sites

Future Cycle Breakers invites your organization to explore a funded pilot of the Cycle Breaker Quest at two or three locations. We would equip your facilitators with curriculum, training, and implementation support to help young people ages 11–15 think, build, and invest.

6	24	$200	11–15
weeks	hours of hands-on learning	initial investment per participant	participant ages

The opportunity for your network

Your sites already bring young people together and build trusted relationships. The Quest gives those teams a structured experience that connects personal growth with entrepreneurship and the first steps toward investing. A shared pilot would let us assess program fit, staff readiness, and youth outcomes before considering wider adoption.

The Quest experience

The Quest runs for six weeks: six four-hour sessions, 24 hours of learning and activities in all, with a family graduation in week seven. Participants move through three connected pillars.

THINK — Mindshifting and Neuroplasticity
Young people explore how their brains learn, practice responding to challenges, and identify their values, interests, and strengths.

BUILD — Innovation and Entrepreneurship
Participants identify problems they care about and develop business ideas, customer understanding, and a brand with a clear purpose.

INVEST — Financial Literacy and Investing
Young people practice money decisions and learn investing concepts. The program model includes a brokerage account and a $200 initial investment per participant, with family participation and account eligibility confirmed before launch.

Early results and our national goal

Our first cohort produced eight new investors; the youngest was 11. Through our school partnerships, we have also delivered more than 300 hours of individual Quest modules. The proposed pilot would help us evaluate delivery by partner staff across multiple sites.

OUR MISSION
Inspire young minds to think, build, and invest.

OUR VISION
10,000 Young Investors Under 16 by 2032.

THE PILOT

A proposed pilot across your sites

We propose beginning with two or three sites and one cohort at each site. Together, we would confirm cohort sizes, staffing, schedules, family engagement, and funding before setting a launch date.

Shared responsibilities

Future Cycle Breakers	Your organization
Curriculum, student materials, and facilitator guidance	Site selection, youth recruitment, and enrollment
Facilitator training and implementation support	Facilitators, program space, and a workable schedule
Shared outcome measures and a pilot review	Attendance records, agreed assessments, and staff feedback
Investment component guidance and family instructions	Family communication and coordination of required permissions

Funding the pilot

A scoped proposal would separate curriculum and implementation support, training, student materials, and the $200 investment per participant. It would also identify any staffing or site costs carried by your organization. Funding could come from your organization, a corporate sponsor, or a jointly secured grant. Pricing would follow agreement on scope and responsibilities.

What we would measure

Together, we would track participation and completion, changes in knowledge and confidence, business idea development, and successful account openings and initial investments. Facilitator feedback and cost per participant would help determine whether the model is practical to expand. Measures and expansion criteria would be agreed before launch.

The next step

Schedule a 30-minute conversation with your program leadership team to identify a program need, discuss potential sites, and confirm your approval and funding process. FCB would then prepare a tailored pilot proposal for review.

info@futurecyclebreakers.org · (312) 446-6483 · futurecyclebreakers.org

Charita Lucas
Executive Director and Founder, Future Cycle Breakers